Let us be Friends

2

Pinky, a fish, lived in the deep blue sea. She was a very beautiful fish. When the other water animals would say, "Come Pinky, play with us," Pinky would swim away. She was proud. One day a crab said to Pinky, "You are very beautiful. Will you be my friend?" Pinky said, "Of course not! You are very ugly, Mr. Crab. How can you be my friend?" The crab felt very sad. He went away.

That same day, a big motor boat sailed in the sea. It threw a big net in the water. Pinky, the fish, was caught in the net. "Help, help," shouted Pinky. The crab heard Pinky's cry. "I must help Pinky," he said. He quickly went up to the net and cut it with his sharp claws. Pinky was free.

Pinky was very ashamed. She said sorry to the crab and they became the best of friends!

A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Read and Understand

We all need friends. Each one of us also needs to be someone's friend. A friend is always kind. When we are friend to someone, we must be kind. We can ask our friends to play first. We can also ask them what they would like to play.

We must share our things with our friends and take turns when we play together.

It is important to care about our friends. Sometimes our friends may be sad, hurt or sick. We must try to find out the reason. We must try to do our best to help them and be nice to them. This will make them feel better. It is important not to fight with our friends. If they make a mistake, we should help them to correct it.
